

The attack on satellite radio is an age-old response to competition. The recurring theme is that "I've run out of ideas so will you lawmakers please punish my competition until I figure out how to compete with them." It's poor business in a world economy; it's an outrageous intrusion in a national economy! Please tell the broadcast industry to quit whining and think of a new idea (slim chance)...